Compliments Elchmond Girls.

Compliments Richmond Girls.

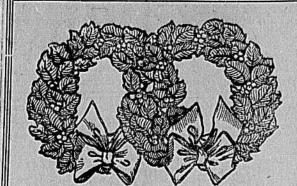

The European editor of the New York Herald is frankly complimentary in what he has to say about the five Richmond girls who are in Paris for a winter of study under the chaperonage of Miss Lillian Todd, of Stuart Hall, Staunton.

The editor mentions that the party were agreeably surprised over the fine October weather they experienced in England, where they experienced in England, where they visited Stoke Poges and found sufficient inspiration for the writing of Gray's "Elegy" in its exquisite beauty. The editor traces their later route through Heidelberg, where the party picked up a new sensation in witnessing duels between German students from their inn windows, and so, on to Paris, He mentions that the young laddes, after remaining three months in Paris, will go on to Italy, and gives their names as Misses Mary Beirne, Rosalie Valentine.
